'No looting at Jenderam'

Sunday Times Staff Correspondent
KUALA LUMPUR, Saturday.

A DENIAL that there was looting during the operation against Jenderam—the Selangor village which became a bandits' lair—was made today by the Kajang district War Executive Committee.

The committee admitted, however, that some property had been stolen on the night of Feb. 15/16 following the evacuation, but said that this had occurred in the outlying districts and it had been physically impossible to stop it. "The presence of bandits in the area on that night has been definitely established," said the committee.

The committee said three bicycles and one sewing machine are known to be missing.

Answering questions by Sunday Times the Committee said that not a single packet of cigarettes was found in Jenderam. There was, however, a small quantity of Chinese tobacco.

A certain amount of beer was held in stock by the village shopkeepers. Some was bought on the spot and paid for by people who took part in the operation. What remained, the committee said, was destroyed because of the difficulty of transporting it to Kajang.

There were six cases of 48 tins each and 26 loose tins of condensed milk brought to Kajang. This, considering the population of Jenderam and the outlying district was not great but the Executive Officer, South Selangor, who was in charge of the operation, said that when he examined the baggage of a number of shopkeepers he found that many of them were carrying tins of milk.
